QNET Presents – Perspectives on Governance:

Professionalizing Board Governance: Core Skills and Knowledge

Monday, November 30, 2009 – 11:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

Board governance in the public and private sectors has come under increasing public scrutiny. Volunteer board directors are experiencing legal, social and economic pressures in fulfilling this very vital social role in our communities. As baby boomers continue to retire, the next generation will be expected to commit its valuable time to taking on these increasingly onerous roles. Prepare your board members for the challenge and ensure the success of the next generation by attending this workshop.

Learning objectives:

- Why board governance needs to professionalize
- How a core skills and knowledge approach to professional training will benefit organizations and funding agencies
- How the 12 principles of good governance can be used as the keystone of governance

Presenter:
Christine Bennet-Clark, the founder and director of Emerge Institute, has 25 years experience in the not-for-profit sector as a social worker, counselor, educator, facilitator, mediator, trainer and researcher. She works with groups and individuals collaboratively using adult learning principles.
