QNET presents:

Using the Power of Visualization to Achieve Consensus

Monday, June 3, 2013 – 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. – Luncheon Presentation

Location: QNET - Suite 660, 175 Hargrave Street, Winnipeg

Achieving consensus is essential for leading organizational change, reaching meaningful decisions, and turning vision into action. Visualization (also known as graphical facilitation) is a common language shared by everyone. Used effectively, it can be a powerful business leadership tool in consensus-based decision-making.

This luncheon seminar will be conducted in a graphical facilitation style with both a presenter and a graphical facilitator. Real-life examples will be provided, along with key insights into how you can include visualization as a leadership tool.

Learning objectives:

- Understand the types of visualization (graphical facilitation) techniques that have shown practical application.
- Learn the basics of where and how to introduce visualization into your workshops, meetings and leadership sessions.
- Learn visualization essentials to help you get started and find out about what other resources are available.

Presenters:

Grant Barkman is President and Lead Facilitator at DecisionWorks, a Manitoba-based management consultancy specializing in leadership of change through effective decision-making. A world-class facilitator and public speaker, he has presented at national and internal leadership conferences and recently gave a TEDx Manitoba talk on the Power of Visualization.
