

LEADERSHIP & MANAGEMENT

QNET presents:

Building Cultural Competence

Wednesday, May 9, 2018 – 8:15 a.m. to 4:15 p.m.

Location: QNET – Suite 660, 175 Hargrave Street, Winnipeg

The range of cultures represented in Manitoba workplaces is increasing, bringing with it real and perceived differences, along with challenges that can impact our relationships, productivity, communication and the bottom line. When understood and effectively harnessed, this diversity enables us to work toward common goals and contributes to growth and innovation.

By building our cultural competence, we can bridge cultural challenges and learn to better understand ourselves and others, to prevent and rectify misunderstandings, to communicate effectively across cultural boundaries, and to successfully cross over to the new cultural frontier at work.

With assistance from civility and culture expert Lew Bayer, participants in this workshop will engage in compelling self-assessments, interactive exercises and lively discussions, and learn to do just that.

After attending this interactive and practical workshop, you will be better able to:

- Recognize how the current immigration demographics impact your organization.
- Differentiate between cultural awareness and cultural competence.
- Identify your personal biases, values, and assumptions and learn how these hinder your cultural competence.

- Choose respectful language that shows you value others.
