

QNET presents:

Team Effectiveness - You'll Want to Bring an Apple for This Teacher

Wednesday, September 23, 2009 – 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Are you looking for innovative ways to enhance team effectiveness in your workplace? Equine-assisted programs have been integrated into leadership and management development programs offered by universities and Fortune 500 companies. At this luncheon presentation, you will have the opportunity to learn about team building through equine-assisted learning. Since the presentation setting will preclude the use of real horses, stick horses, video and slides will enhance the learning experience for participants.

Learning Objectives:

- Experience a unique team building exercise using stick horses
- Gain a new perspective on team effectiveness principles and new ways to strengthen and improve their workplace teams
- Learn what equine-assisted learning, therapy and personal development programs are all about

Presenters: Sheryl Feller, FCMC, Bluebear Enterprises Inc. & Candice Kontzie, Equine/HR Facilitator, Roycan's Country Haven
Sheryl offers consulting, education and facilitation skills, with a focus on strategic planning, board governance, leadership development and change management. She has taught for both Universities of Manitoba and Winnipeg, and holds a Master of Business Administration and a Bachelor of Arts. Sheryl has been a lifelong horsewoman and, with her family, runs Bluebear Farms. Candice combined her 25+ years of human resource and business experience with years of horse experience to develop Equine-Assisted Programs. With topics related to human resource development and personal growth, she offers programs for cancer patients / family, along with individual and custom designed programs for businesses, sports groups, adults and youth.

QUEST is a series of information sessions that bridge the gap between business needs and local consulting expertise. Presentations feature a variety of concepts, tools and practices relevant for today's workplace.
