QNET Presents:

Achieving Work/Life Balance

Wednesday, November 25, 2009 - 12:45 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.

The terminology "workaholic" originated with the Baby Boomer generation who were the first to determine that in order to succeed at work one needed to be seen to be putting in long hours. Those long hours have led to high levels of stress and burnout within the Canadian workforce and to a recognition that something needs to change.

This session will explore strategies to find success within and balance between one's work and personal life. Learn about:

- The state of work/life balance in Canada
- The costs of stress
- Defining what matters to you
- Time management: principles, tools and strategies
- Stress management: principles and strategies
- How to develop your action plan today
